Working as a Software Engineer for large companies, today I'm allocated at ChaiOne, a company that delivers more than softwares, but a problem solver for their clients.

I already worked for two companies there in the United States as Mobile Software Engineer working with Xamarin Forms, using the best practices of System Architecture, Design Patterns like DDD, Strategy, using S.O.L.i.D principles as well.

We also have integration with MSAL (Microsoft Authentication Library) and also Microsoft Intune and also working with custom controls, like XCalendar, LiveCharts and much more, all of these using MVVM pattern and also Reactive Extensions for .net, to make the application completely reactive for actions/events generated by user or the server side

Both applications use Reactive Extensions to make applications more fluid and solid to treat errors and events.

Also both applications are fully configured in Azure DevOps pipeline, with builds separated for internal testing (alpha version), client testing (beta version) and production.
